TODAY, NOT MUCH HAS CHANGED. 50 YEARS LATER...

STAND UP, FIGHT BACK!

When Martin Luther King Jr. was killed on April 4 nearly 50 years ago, he was in Memphis to support black sanitation workers who were on strike against politicians intent on busting their union. King saw a deep link between the labor and civil rights movements and believed that union rights were fundamental to achieving racial justice. Four hundred years of slavery and segregation, combined with 40 years of anti-union policies, continues to hold black and brown people back in this country.
